| | 4. The following information illustrates the capabilities of | J |
| specif | ic IDEALIST Program assets: | |
| | a. Photographic systems: The "H" Camera system can | |
| | cover an area from 225 to 1370 nautical miles in length. It can | |
| | be used in vertical or oblique positions and achieves six to 10 | |
| | inch vertical resolution. The IRIS II system can acquire 2100 to | |
| | 3600 nautical miles linear coverage, a 60 to 70 nautical miles | |
| | lateral coverage, and a one foot vertical resolution. The varying | |
| | linear coverage for both systems is dependent on the mode of | |
| | camera operation. | 25 |

d. The IDEALIST U-2R is certified for operations from selected US aircraft carriers. This carrier capability enhances the world-wide operational capability by providing added flexibility if land bases are not readily accessible.

5. The IDEALIST Program has demonstrated its capability to conduct photographic and electronic reconnaissance, peripherally and over denied and hostile territory, on virtually a world-wide basis.

Operations off the mainland China coast show that much activity can be perceived without actually penetrating hostile territory. Events in the Middle East crisis indicate that much valuable information could have been obtained without actually overflying denied areas. With its current status and capabilities, the CIA U-2 program provides a rapid response reconnaissance vehicle that can be employed in a manner that allows plausible denial of US involvement. Thus, it continues to provide flexibility in the selection of options if other recunnaissance systems are neutralized and in the event of future unforeseen contingencies.

CARL E. DUCKETT
Director, CIA Reconnaissance Programs
